SITE FOR BATTLE ABBEY

Let Camp Will Act To-Night on Resolution Indorsing West End.

Indorsing West End.

The question of site for the Battle Abbey will be the topic of discussion at Lee Camp to-night, a resolution recommending that the Abbey be located at the intersection of the Boulevard and Monument Avenue being before the camp, it was introduced last week by Adjutant J. Taylor Stratton, and was made the special order for the meeting to-night! While action by Lee Camp would be purely advisory and would not bind the burst of the Battle Abbey, it would neverticless be an index of Confederate sentiment in Richmond and would have its weight in the final choice of a location,

PUBLISHING RECORDS OF BURGESSES OLD HOUSE OF BURGESSES

Dr. II. R. Mellwainer, the State Librarian, is at work getting out the remaining six volumes of the proceedings of the House or Burgesser. Five volumes have already been published, the proceedings covered dating from 1716 back to about 1732. When this work was first started there was some doubt as to whether or not the records of all of the seksions could be found, and for that reason it was decided to tart with the records of the last session and publish those that had been found up to the time the work began. Recently, however, Dr. Mellwaine succeeded in uncarthing all of the records from 183 to 1732. Many of these are in manuscript form and came from England.

Oriental Power Could Overgun the Oriental Power Could Overum the Country From San Pedro.

WASHINGTON, January 21.—The fact that there was recently sent to Congress by President Roosevelt a report by the general staff of the army which became public to-day, recommending fortifications for San Pedro Harbor, California, was made the basis for suggestions that such decision had just been reached in view of a possibility of trouble with Japan.

At the War Department this inference was given most explicit denial. There it was said that the general subject of the improvement of San Pedro harbor had been under consideration more than two years, beginning before there was any thought of any dispute between the United States and Japan. It was taken up as a natural military problem, involving the necessary protection of the Southern California coast from invasion, and withsary protection of the Southern Cali-fornia coast from invasion, and with-out reference to any particular country or enemy. The defense of San Pedro was considered just as that of other harbors on the Pacific or Atlantic coast would be.

As a purely naval base the general staff thinks that San Pedro offers to an enemy considerable advantages, its use for this purpose being with a view to operations against other points or the Panama Canal.

The general staff's argument in this connection assumes that an enemy is coming from the Orient, and the statement is made that so far as location is concerned San Pedro would be a good base for, an enemy to operate against our Pacific coast.

Under the head of "Ease of Conquest," the report says that "recent study discloses the fact that, assuming there were no effective naval opposition, a certain Oriental power could, within a month of the time its hostille intentions began to be even strongly suspected (a formal declararation of war would no doubt come a good deal later), land on our Pacific coast an expedition of an estimated maximum of about 100,000 men, and that such a force could be augmented by the end of two months more to a total of possibly 300,000.

To write a good advertisement about Duffy's Pure Malt Whistow, a person should know the effect it has on nervous and rundown cases, and in cases of cold, bronchitis and lung trouble.

One can then realize the strengthening effect it has on body, brain and nerve, and the aid it gives to the vital forces, thus continued to possibly 300,000.
